

SOURCE's Partner of the Month – March 2017

Name of Organization: Johns Hopkins School of Nursing Peace Corps Coverdale Fellows

Mission: Translating Returned Peace Corps Volunteers (RPCV) experiences into work with community agencies with health programs and masters entry to nursing education.

Programs: Peace Corps Coverdale Fellows work throughout Baltimore serving the community to improve access to care as well as provide HIV/AIDS counseling, women, children refugee, and senior, health and wellness.

Greatest Asset: Returned Peace Corps Volunteers bring a world of experience working in low resource settings making a difference through hands-on and grass-roots work to create lasting change. The Fellows ability to immerse themselves into the community and work side by side with agencies facilitate tackling the most pressing challenges of Baltimore.

Biggest Challenge: The process of reintegrating into American culture is both a challenge and opportunity for the fellows. It allows them to have fresh eyes and new ideas. This process is ongoing, once a RPCV, always a RPCV.

Collaborative Opportunities: We welcome organizations looking to collaborate with the Peace Corps Fellows.

Johns Hopkins School of Nursing
Peace Corps Coverdale Fellows

CONTACT:

Dr. Nancy Glass
Program Director
jhuson@jhu.edu
Johns Hopkins School of Nursing
525 N. Wolfe
Baltimore, MD 21205
410-955-7548
Nursing.jhu.edu