How do practitioners address power and privilege in health professional relationships? What strategies exist to center anti-oppression in holistic care?

In light of World AIDS Day, SOURCE is partnering with the School of Nursing to highlight the intentional ways Sisters Together And Reaching (STAR) utilized anti-oppressive frameworks to care — which focus on helping service providers understand power and privilege especially in a health service relationship. These frameworks help shift the power dynamic in helping relationships and program design. For example:

- Structural Competence
- Harm Reduction
- Basic Needs Centering
- Trauma-Informed Care
- Transformative Justice

Who: Students from JHSPH, SOM, and SON
What: Lunchtime interactive learning experience
When: Thurs. November 29, 12:00 – 1:30 p.m.
Where: School of Nursing 525 N. Wolfe Street Room 217

Lunch provided | RSVP click here
To prevent food waste, please provide and honor your RSVP

SOURCE.jhu.edu
@JHUSOURCE
nursing.jhu.edu

Sponsored by SOURCE and the School of Nursing | For more information, contact SOURCE at 410-955-3880 or SOURCE@jhu.edu