

SOURCE Service-Learning Academy

2025-2026

Overview for Community Fellows

The Johns Hopkins University SOURCE Service-Learning Academy is a one-year, comprehensive program that equips faculty and community leaders with all of the necessary tools and methods to develop critical service-learning partnerships, projects, and courses. Community Fellows will gain an understanding of service-learning pedagogy, critical reflection, and justice-based design while finding practical ways to engage with JHU faculty and students.

As a SOURCE Service-Learning Community Fellow, you will be able to:

Understand and utilize service-learning pedagogy engaging students in critical reflection around power, privilege and ethics in the health fields

Design a service-learning project in conjunction with a JHU health professional school faculty member

Build new and/or strengthen existing partnerships with JHU faculty members and SOURCE

Engage in critical dialogue with colleagues regarding the role of service-learning in the health professions and how it applies to the community

Network and collaborate with a community of 80+ service-learning professionals in health education and community-based organizations

Explain service-learning to students, colleagues and community partners

Receive a stipend of $1500

Commitments

Attend Summer Seminar: June 3-4, 2025

Attend quarterly check-in meetings with other Faculty and Community Fellows

Participate in a scholarly academic-community partnership throughout the year such as being a preceptor for a course project or internship

Community Fellows Project such as enhancing materials for SOURCE partner CBOs or preceptors

Presentation of your activities in April 2026

Apply by Sat,
March 1, 2025

To Learn More

Contact Dr. Tyler Derreth, SOURCE Associate Director, at tyler.derreth@jhu.edu.

SOURCE.jhu.edu/Fellows